London, Jan. 26. Government rejection of a proposal that a committee of inquiry investigate a pay dispute is widely ragarded today as the first sign of a new tougher policy towards the trade

Mr Jain MacLood, Minister of Labour, rejected the proposal, made by the 1,300,000 strong Transport and General Workers Union, the dargest single union outside Russio.

The Union had asked the Minister to appoint a committee of inquiry into a claim for a 25 shillings a week pay rise for 53,000 London bus workers.

The London Transport executive had rejected this claim flatly but was willing to cooperate in a committee of inquiry which could recommend a basis for fresh negotiations.

POSSIBILITY

The Union and the Transport executive would each have appointed a member of the committee with the chairman chosen by the Minister of Labour.

Last night Mr Frank Cousins. secretary of the T.G.W.U. disclosed that Mr MucLeod had rejected the idea, but had suggested instead the possibility of a general inquiry into the passenger transport industry.

The Hongkong Police Commissioner's XI, comprising eight regular members of the Hongkong Police and three members of the Police Reserve, started uncommonly well against the Singapore Police, Champions of the Singapore Cricket League, in the two-day match that

ELECTRONIC DEVICE GIVES JET PILOT TRUE COURSE

Designed for the impending jet era of air transport, a new electronic device which instantaneously gives the pilot his true course and ground speed over land or sea, is being evaluated by Pan American Airways in co-operation with the Air Transport Association and the US Air Force.

The new device, called RADAN, will be of great THREE commercial air speeds will exceed 600 miles per hour Personal $5.00 per insertion and will be used on all of Pan Am's fleet of 44 jet airliners, the first of which will be delivered in 1958. The device guides a plane unerringly on the course chosen, without reference to ground aids. It allows instant compensation for wind. It shows the pilot exactly how many ground miles he has travelled by means of a mileometer like that on automobiles.

Principle

The principle of the device, which has four probing fingers of radar directed toward the ground is based on an effect discovered in 1843 by an Austrian scientist, Christian Doppler, who found that there was a relationship between the appointments from resident speed of a moving object and the sound it generated as it appronched a listener.

Australian Mining Town Model Immigration Assimilation

Brisbane, Jan. 26. OHE Australian immigration authorities, keenly aware the problem of assimilation in mass immigration, are publicising an outback Queensland that immigrants can be assimilated into community.

The township is Mount Isa, situated in tropical northestern Queensland In other town in Australia are im- migrants at Mount migrants being assimilated so smoothly and on such a large scale, occording to an immigration spokesman. Here, men of 40 different nationalities are employed by Mount Isa minesnew settlers who have, come from all parts of Britain and Europe.

One of the main reasons for the outstanding success of the venture in assimilation could be that life in this outback mining town tends to bring Australians new settlers together socially as well as industrially.

Existence

Searcely a country in the world has not been represented on the payroll at Mount Isa during its 34 years of existence. Italians and Hungarians, Even two Eskimos have been employed in this heat-bathed

The Mount Isa story began in 1923, when prospector John Campbell Miles discovered silver-lead there while on his way to Darwin. He pegged two leases. Soon, there were 500 leases in an area three miles wide and eight miles long.

Mount Isa mines took over all the leases in 1925 and invested millions of pounds of Australian, British and American capital to develop the field into Queensland's greatest single industrial enterprise. Deposits of silverlead, zine and copper are now

Philadelphia Takes Lead In Cutting 'Prime Rates'

By IVAN ZERINA

New York, Jan. 26. "Easier Money" measures gained depth last week with lowered rediscount rates stimulating the capital markets while commodities registered still more softening.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia broke the ice with a cut to 23/4 per cent from three per cent. This followed a cut from 31/2 per cent by all Federal Reserve Banks last November. The Philadelphia action last week immediately resulted in cuts of the "prime rates" on lending by New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Kansas City banks from 41/2 to 4 per cent.
